5 consumer truths to get your marketing ready for 2021
Introduction

With a pandemic and social turmoil creating profound behavioral, economic, and technological shifts, making sense of 2020 might seem a nearly impossible task. Google has looked back at billions of search queries from 2020, as well as consumer behaviors, surveys, and interviews and landed on five key insights to help marketers get ready for 2021 and beyond.
5 key consumer insights to help marketers navigate 2021 and beyond:

1. Creating control
2. Bargaining for balance
3. Cultivating connection
4. Curating the home
5. Acting on allyship
Heading into 2021, people still face a world filled with uncertainties. As they navigate through these, they will continue to value signals of reassurance and safety, and seek out ways to proactively take control of and improve their lives. How can marketers help consumers not only survive but actually thrive?
Searches for who has and in stock\(^1\)

+8000% YOY

fitness apps\(^2\)
+200% YOY

online learning\(^3\)
+400% YOY

“

To keep my peace and to start off my day right with everything going on, I decided to start a routine in the morning.”

— Carol, U.S.\(^4\)
People are searching for ways to gain control over their immediate environments, and items or activities with emotional benefits.

SEARCHES THAT CONTAIN

- WFH
  - “desk”
  - “kids desk”
  - “desk chair”

- Cooking
  - “dinner ideas”
  - “how to cook”
  - “cooking”

- Home Improvement
  - “stores”
  - “furniture”
  - “TV”

- New Pets
  - “puppy finder”
  - “training”
  - “puppy names”

- Nature
  - “full moon”
  - “nature”

- Hobbies
  - “xbox”
  - “playstation”
  - “hobby”
  - “knitting”

- Camping
  - “tent”
  - “camping gear”

While the desire for a more balanced approach to life predates the pandemic, that need is now more apparent than ever before. People will continue to negotiate with themselves and others to establish boundaries and restore a sense of balance across emotional, physical, and psychological dimensions. How can marketers help consumers achieve this balancing act?
Searches for

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Search Term</th>
<th>Change</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>rv rental near&lt;br&gt;(1)</td>
<td>+200% YOY</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>staycation&lt;br&gt;(2)</td>
<td>+100% YOY</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>meditation apps&lt;br&gt;(3)</td>
<td>+90% YOY</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

“I’ve been trying to carve time out of each day for myself. I feel more balanced after these experiences.”

— TONY, U.S.

---

The pandemic has placed constraints on people’s ability to establish and maintain relationships in the real world. So people have sought alternative ways to connect, placing renewed focus on those closest to them, both interpersonally and within their communities. How can marketers enable consumers to both maintain the quality of their existing relationships while also providing opportunities to create new ones?
Searches for

with friends online \(^1\)
+300% YOY

local + business(es) \(^2\)
+80% YOY

Watch time in U.S. for YouTube videos with #WithMe in the title. \(^3\)
+200% YOY

“... It’s brought me closer together with my neighbors. ... As city dwellers, for so long we didn’t even know who our neighbors were, but now we have realized the importance of that bond.”

— KEN, JAPAN \(^4\)

The constraints COVID-19 placed on mobility caused many people to make their personal spaces as multifunctional and comfortable as possible. While this inward focus on comfort will likely continue, consumers are also yearning for ways to move beyond their homes and get back into the wider world. How can marketers alleviate this tension?
Searches for

- simple house design
  +200% YOY

- virtual tour
  +500% YOY
  e.g., “musee d’orsay virtual tour”

Watch time in U.S. for YouTube videos with home activities in the title.
  +120% YOY

“Optimizing my home space has helped me feel happy and safe in my home. I feel serene and hopeful, strong mentally.”

— ANA, BRAZIL

Sources:
Across multiple categories, searches with at home have grown 10x compared to the previous year.¹

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>2019</th>
<th>2020</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Retail</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Occasions/Gifts</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Apparel</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dining &amp; Nightlife</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Home &amp; Garden</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Food &amp; Groceries</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Travel &amp; Tourism</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hobbies &amp; Leisure</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Entertainment</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Health</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Beauty &amp; Personal Care</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jobs &amp; Education</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sport &amp; Fitness</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Since last year searches for to do at home have grown globally by over 600%.²

e.g., “things to do at home during quarantine.”

In many parts of the world, the pandemic coincided with major social upheaval and the intensifying of movements like Black Lives Matter in the U.S. A need for change has arisen. According to Forrester, 68% of Americans say that a company’s social-responsibility reputation influences their purchasing decisions. This awareness is not going away and will likely influence brand choices moving forward.
I’d like more authentic and holistic approaches from the brands as well as more transparency! This would really make a difference if we were to have an understanding of the complex environment we live in and how our consumption impacts the world!”

— SYLVIE, FRANCE

How social causes can influence the purchase journey

Carl, 56
Tampa, FL
Journey:
75 days
Touchpoints:
Over 600

 Searches for polo color crew

 Retail brand A: Apparel brand A t-shirts

 Mens retailers give back to the community apparel brand B

 What stores recycle clothing?

 Retailer brand B site: Straight fit

 Apparel brand C supports a single cause

 Is apparel brand D a good brand?

Retailer brand C

Source: Google/Verto Analytics Cross Device Audience Measurement Panel, n=2,125 panelists, U.S. Customer and brand names have been anonymized, March 27–June 9, 2020.
We believe these insights will endure to shape 2021 and that understanding them will provide marketers with opportunities to better meet consumers’ needs. The first thing marketers need to do is infuse data-driven thinking in all steps of their marketing. What else can you do to set your company up for sustained success in 2021 and beyond?

Embrace agility over certainty. Planning and building responsive systems that enable quick pivots when necessary can ensure that marketers are nimble and ready for whatever comes their way.

Provide consumers with a seamless, personal digital experience. For companies that aren’t already doing so, it’s time to invest in ways to deliver seamless and personal digital experiences to consumers. We know that doing so results in positive business outcomes.
Boost consumer confidence: We are still far from “back to normal.” For many people, a level of uncertainty or fatigue will likely persist in this new year. Marketers should find ways to reassure and remind people that their businesses are getting the basics right — think product availability and appropriate safety measures. But beyond the basics, marketers should strive to help people feel like they’re reestablishing some semblance of control over their lives and that they’re thriving rather than simply surviving.

Market with purpose. Whether it’s marketing that better reflects diversity or the causes your company aligns with, people increasingly expect brands to actively contribute toward the betterment of society as a whole. Moving forward, a brand’s actions will become an increasingly important driver of choice and loyalty.

Understand the balance between new and old behaviors. Continue to monitor how consumers are balancing between their pre-pandemic routines and the new behaviors they developed as a result of the unprecedented nature of 2020. Encourage the choices you want consumers to make by appealing to their new context and designing new cues and rewards for them to think of your products and services.