Deepening digital

If 2020 saw millions of consumers come online out of necessity, 2021 showed the staying power of digital. From shopping to services, people are now embracing all the benefits of a digital-first lifestyle - from speed to convenience, greater choice, and more.

Extended lockdowns in 2021 for much of Australia and New Zealand meant digital usage increased in the day-to-day lives of many people, from using Google and YouTube Search for online shopping, digital payments, and live-streaming content up from the start of the pandemic. Now, as the 'new normal' takes hold, this trend is continuing as the digital divide narrows. With retail searches remaining 25% higher than pre-COVID, it's clear that digital is here to stay and businesses need to be well positioned to stay online. Adopting this trend is here to stay.
